CRITZ MIA ON HEALTHCARE DEBATE

Washington, PA – While Nancy Pelosi and her liberal allies in Washington are pulling out all the stops¹ to have the federal government takeover control of our healthcare system, congressional candidate Mark Critz refuses² to even discuss the issue with voters as he seeks their support in the Special Election for Pennsylvania's 12th District. According to The Hill newspaper, Critz refused to state how he would vote on the Pelosi bill.

“Mark Critz has been a candidate for Congress for three weeks, and he is running on his experience working in a congressional office. I find it hard to believe that he doesn't know how he would vote on this bill that will impact every single American,” stated Burns. “It is time for Critz to stop playing political games and tell the voters of this district where he stands on Pelosi's healthcare bill.”

Tim Burns has made it clear that he opposes Obamacare, and he will work to repeal the bill if it becomes law.³ For more information about Tim Burns, go to www.timburnsforcongress.com.
